Don't miss this fascinating panel discussion about the history of Jewish summer camps in the American South, moderated by Rachael Brill, who's served for the past five years as the Associate Director of Camping at the Union for Reform Judaism (URJ).

The panel will look at these Jewish camps today and their unique value proposition in the South with Anna Herman (URJ Jacobs Camp in Utica, MS), David Fleischhaker (Camp Darom in Memphis, TN), and Audrey Robbins Siskind (Camp Barney Medintz in Cleveland, GA).

You are welcome to stay on the Zoom after the panel, donned in your best camp T-shirt and with some hot cocoa in hand, to schmooze and tell your own camp stories. It promises to be an afternoon full of learning, ruach (spirit), and nostalgia!
